Rieger, the convicted president of the defunct Missouri National Bank of Kansas City, Mo., which went to the wall five years ago, arrived yesterday morning from New York to voluntarily enter the penitentiary and serve out his sentence of six years for defrauding the bank. He was accompanied by his wife, and they registered at the Madison Hotel as from Kansas City, their old home. They came here direct from New York where they have spent the past three years. They have quarters in parlor "B" at the Madison and evade all interviewers. A caller had to first send his card up, and then in most instances was refused an interview.

Mr. Rieger met the representative of The Press in the reception hall at the hotel and informed him that he was now in waiting for instructions from Attorney Frank Hagerman, of Kansas City, and the arrival of his commitment papers.
